LABOR DEMANDS PLANT SEIZURE LAW

LEADER STORE IS IN RUINS

SOLONS OF ITALY TOLD TO ACT

Immediate Assembling of Parliament Asked by Workers

Factories ARE GUARDED

Transportation of Troops is Halted by Strike

MILAN.—(By Associated Press).—Immediate convocation of the Italian parliament for the purpose of passing laws under which workmen may take over management of industrial plants has been demanded by the "Confederazione di Lavoro," in session here.

Resolutions favoring a compromise of the situation resulting from occupation of plants by workmen through Italy were adopted at a stormy session of the confederation Sunday. Socialist leaders bitterly attacked the confederation and demanded that the Socialist party assume control of the situation, which, they claimed, had taken a purely political aspect.

When the Socialist demands were rejected, an additional resolution was passed by the confederation which asked the president of the chamber of deputies and Premier Giolitti to call parliament into session.

PLANTS GUARDED

TURIN, Italy.—(By Associated Press).—Anxiety felt by the authorities lest the workmen engaged in the industrial plant controversy here might attempt to take possession of the dynamite works at Avigliana, 13 miles west of Turin, one of the largest plants of its kind in Italy, led to protective measures Sunday. The garrison with the works was strengthened with carabinieri and troops equipped with machine guns.

TROOPS HELD UP

ROME.—(By United Press).—In the face of a decision by a majority of workmen and socialist representatives not to proclaim a general strike nor to transform the present economic agitation in a political struggle, the government Sunday decided to send 26 troops taken over at Turin alone.

Troops were held up in Bologna and Parma and detained as the result of the order of the railway workers' syndicate that no troops should be transported into northern Italy.

The victory of the moderates over the extremists occurred early Sunday at a conference in Milan, following a debate which lasted all day Saturday and that night. The extremists' revolution which would practically have put into effect the principles of the "third international" was voted down by a majority of 9,000 out of a total representation of 1,100,000. Deputy Dragana, who had represented the metal workers in the conference with manufacturers, then presented a resolution for a compromise under the direction of the general confederation of labor. This was adopted by a majority of 200,000. The government previously had warned labor leaders that adoption of the extremist resolution would mean armed intervention and possibly bloodshed.

Negotiations with the manufacturers were reopened Sunday after the victory of the moderates.

JOLIET, Ill.—(By United Press).—Attempts to crowd into the next few years all the education, physical development and play lost by the 19-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Kolyszka here during her 17 years' imprisonment, was planned by science Monday.

The child, locked in a basement because her mother hated the sight of her crippled body, was found by health authorities. She is unable to walk or talk and her eyes gleam unnaturally from the long accustomed darkness of her prison.

Dr. Sigmund Krumholz, neurologist, and Dr. Bernard Klein, expert diagnostician, interested themselves in the case Monday. They were doubtful of her recovery.

ALLIES PARLEY ON RUSS QUESTION

Meet to Decide Course As to Bolshevik-Polish War

AIX LES BAINES, France.—(By United Press).—Premier Millerand of France and Premier Giolitti of Italy, were to resume their conference Monday in an attempt to reach an agreement on the Russian question. Millerand is said to approve the attitude toward Bolshevism expressed in the American note to Italy, while Giolitti sides with the expressed conviction of Premier Lloyd George of England that recognition of the soviets and resumption of trade with them is necessary to prevent Germany controlling Russian commerce.

Asked for a definite statement upon the divergence in Franco-Italian views regarding Russia, Millerand replied:

"We are sure all viewpoints are the same as those of Premier Lloyd George and Giolitti, who would not welcome Bolshevism in their own countries any more than we."

Regarding the Russo-Polish situation, Millerand told the newspapermen that he and Giolitti had decided to recommend moderation to the Poles, advising them to sign an "acceptable" peace.

"We will hear Chairman Paderewski Monday," he said. "We agreed that the treaty of Versailles and all other war pacts must be executed strictly according to letter. We are thoroughly in accord along general lines and our conversations have been most cordial."

G. O. P. CLAIMS ELECTION

Campaign Issues National, Principally on League

PORTLAND, Maine.—(By Associated Press).—Maine men and women went to the polls Monday for the election of state and county officers, legislature and congressmen after having been told through the campaign that the eyes of the nation were upon them to give the traditional indication of political sentiment in the country in the presidential election.

The weather was clearing after Sunday's rain and all indications pointed to a heavy vote. Both parties expressed confidence in the result. The Republicans claimed victory by a 30,000 plurality. The Democrats indulged in no figures. The issues have been national, with chief emphasis placed on the league of nations.

For the first time women voted in this state. Both parties claimed the support of this new element. For governor, Frederic H. Parkhurst of the Republican, is opposed by Bertrand G. McIntire, of Norway, Democrat. All four congressmen in this state are Republicans and three are standing for re-election.

The polls will close everywhere at 6 p. m. (Eastern Standard time.)

NEW YORK VOTES TOMORROW

Both Parties Have Lively Sensational Fights on Hand

NEW YORK.—(By United Press).—Chief interests in the New York state primary election Tuesday center in the fights for the United States senatorial nominations.

In seeking renomination at the hands of the Republicans, Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., has had to face the combined attacks of the woman suffragists and the "drys." All other issues have been obscured in the three-cornered race, in which he is opposed by George H. Payne, and Mrs. Ella A. Boole, of Brooklyn, but so certain is the Republican national organization leaders of Wadsworth's success that they have already printed large quantities of campaign material to be turned loose immediately the result of the primary is announced.

Mrs. Boole, who is also prohibition candidate for the senatorial nomination, entered the primary race on an account of Wadsworth's "wetness" and his hostility to suffrage.

On the Democratic side, George Lunn, militant mayor of Schenectady, in opposing the regular Democratic organization candidate, Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker, for the senatorial nomination, Lunn has been making his fight chiefly as a protest against the present Tammany control of Democratic party affairs in the state.

CHICAGO.—(By Associated Press).—John Gruman, president of the Chicago Yardmen's Association, one of the unions which called the switchmen's strike April 1, Monday denied widely circulated reports that the strike had been called off.

Strikers in other centers refused even to take a vote on ending the strike, Mr. Gruman said, while the men in the Chicago district voted 21,374 to 21,344 to remain out.

Mr. Gruman's figures are disputed by T. J. Meisner, head of the yardmen in the Kansas City district, who is here. Mr. Meisner claims the Chicago strikers gave a majority of 1,500 in favor of remaining on strike, but declined to say on what information he based his figures.

"The case of Olive Thomas is the most interesting of its kind in years. After a careful study of the known circumstances I do not hesitate to state my belief that, under the hyper-excitement incident to a night's sojourn amidst Parisian dancing scenes, Olive entirely lost her sense of reality on that fatal morning."

"The barrier between her real personality and her theatrical one had disappeared. She certainly believed she was acting for a film."

"It was only the unbearable burning of the poisonous drug which startled her back to real life and caused her to call for help."

TWO HEROES AT SUNDAY FIRE ARE NAMED

Fred Connor, an employe of the Solar Refining Co., and Harry Lewis are named by Safety Director E. J. Fisher as the two individual volunteer heroes of the Leader Store fire Sunday.

The heroic work of the regular fire ladders, is expected and therefore no special mention of their work is made, according to Fisher, but with the volunteers full praise should be given.

He declared these two men entered the basement of the building at the risk of losing their lives from the collapsing floor, and carried a hose a distance of about 30 feet, wading in water up to their waist, and in fumes which were almost suffocating. In this way, he said, a stream of water reached the point which was apparently the base of the fire, and which it had been impossible to reach up to that time.

Fisher declared the work of all the volunteers was good, but this particular work was the outstanding heroic deed of the ten hour fight.

CAUSE IS NOT DETERMINED

Covered by Insurance. Holstein Believes—Future Plans

Fire loss which probably will run near half a million dollars was suffered by the Leader Store, 141-5 N. Main-st Sunday, in a blaze with which all six companies of the Lima fire department battled for 10 hours before succeeding in extinguishing it. Gus Holstein, owner of the store declared so far as he knew the stock was covered by insurance.

The entire stock of goods on the first floor and in the basement of the building is practically a total loss. Goods on the second floor were damaged by water used to keep the blaze from reaching that floor. The only damage to merchandise on the third floor, is from water, according to officials of the store.

FIREMEN OVERCOME

The alarm was turned in by C. C. Burden, a night

N. Y. SUN REVIEW

NEW YORK — The Evening Sun Financial Review Monday said:

Trading in securities at the beginning of the new week, was materially restricted by the advent of the Jewish holiday season and the general propensity of the public and professional elements alike to hold aloof or mark time pending some positive development which would aid in crystallizing sentiment. The opening was mixed and there was nothing in the early performance to indicate a definite trend. The list finally settled down into humdrum procedure which failed to attract or hold attention.

There was some attempt to break the monotony of this sort of thing at one time by raising the steel industrial which none too readily lent themselves to the venture, and at another by promoting the Mexican oil shares, which enjoyed expansive moments with a tendency however, to revert to former prices.

Rails had a stronger front than the industrial, altho they were quite severely left alone and gains at best were little more than a point. Prices were inclined to be lower, with the market very thin. The trading was mainly in small lots. Some of the hesitation was without doubt traceable to the Maine election as the result in that state in presidential years has come to be regarded as a sort of indicator of the later election.

Wiring in the basement was especially commented upon, he said. The only possible place he could think of where spontaneous combustion might take place was in some of the Christmas supplies which had recently been stored in the basement.

Safety Director Fred Fisher requested The News and Times-Democrat to express to the public his special thanks for the excellent help rendered by volunteers. He declared volunteers offered their assistance willingly and as many as could be furnished equipment were pressed into service and rendered valuable aid. The entire available force from the Solar Refinery was furnished and he declared rendered valuable aid in relieving regular firemen who were exhausted. Fisher declared citizens responded well to the efforts of the police department to preserve order, and after five lines were established very little trouble was experienced in keeping the fire zone cleared.

RID CROSS ASSISTANT

Early in the forenoon an appeal was made by Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt to Mrs. J. B. Poling, of the local chapter of the American Red Cross, who obtained permission from Chairman Fred C. Becker to call out both the nursing and canteen departments.

Under the direction of Miss Mueller, chairman of the relief committee of the local chapter, a supply of nurses, cots, pillows etc. was obtained from Red Cross headquarters and a first aid station established at the scene of the fire. In addition to Mrs. Lena B. Davis and Miss Mueller, Mrs. J. B. Poling, Miss Marie Foote, and Mrs. Klopfer, of Drifpos were on duty. The nursing made the rounds of the various fire stations where medical attention was given, especially to the eyes of exhausted firemen.

Mrs. Charles A. Black, chairman of the canteen committee of the Red Cross chapter, called two other members of the committee, Mrs. B. A. Gramm and Mrs. Oscar N. Young, to service and hot coffee, roast beef sandwiches, pie and cake were served to the fire fighters. Hot coffee was supplied by the Lima house. The Norval hotel, Manhattan cafe, Hudson lunch and the Francada cafeteria are reported to have offered their services.

The members of the police department were early called into service and practically the entire force which could be spared from other duties, including members of the night force, headed by Chief Roush, worked side by side with the firemen. A number of them are suffering Monday from severely smoked eyes.

Scout executive E. F. Stallsmith was on duty at 10 o'clock with 22 boy scouts in uniform, who relieved members of the police department who had been on duty without relief since early in the morning handling traffic.

DOCTORS RECEIVE DEATH THREATS

Physicians Menaced as Irish Hunger Strikers Near End

CORK. — (By Associated Press.) — The eleven hunger strikers in the Cork jail were still alive Monday, but all of them were materially weaker. Two of the striking prisoners, Burke and Kenny, collapsed twice during the night, and their condition is causing especial anxiety.

Sean Hennessey, the 19-year-old youth whose condition has been grave for several days, remains in a comatose state, and in his semi-conscious moments he is refusing to take the customary quantity of water. During Sunday night he accepted only two sips.

LET COMMON SENSE KEEP YOU WELL

If we all lived as nature intended there would be little sickness. Nowadays, however, we are inclined to "go it too hard," to overwork, worry, eat and drink too much; to neglect our exercise, rest and sleep. This weakens the kidneys and brings on back-ache, dizziness, nervous spells, and annoying disorders. Don't wait for worse troubles. Strengthen the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped others, they should help you. Ask your neighbor!

LIMA TESTIMONY

L. E. Kepner, 212 W. Kibby St., says: "I caught cold and it settled in the small of my back. A sharp pain caught me like a knife-thrust and I felt as though my back were broken. For two weeks, I wasn't able to do anything, and when I sat down it was all I could do to get up again. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at Butler's Drug Store. After taking three boxes of Doan's my back and kidneys were in good shape and I was able to get about my work as usual." — Adv.

U. S. EDUCATION CONTROL URGED

Needed to Combat Growing Menace of Illiteracy

HOUSING PROBLEM SERIOUS

States and Cities Cannot Work Efficiently, Leaders Say

NEW YORK. — By United Press. — Creation of a department of education in the president's cabinet, is essential to the co-ordination of state and municipal efforts in combating the growing menace of illiteracy of the United States, in the opinion of the New York educators.

The school problem has become so serious it is national, rather than local, E. A. Nifinekar, director of research and statistics, said in an interview Monday.

States and cities are now largely working out their own solutions, Nifinekar pointed out. This work could be increased immeasurably in efficiency thru federal cooperation, he said. He also advocated extension of government subsidies which recently have been put into effect.

EDUCATIONAL PROBLEMS

For the past several years, the educational problem in the United States has been two-fold—shortage of school houses. Reports collected by the United Press Monday from the principal cities indicate that the first phase was gradually being obviated thru the simple expedient of increasing salaries and making the profession more attractive. The housing phase, however, apparently will take years to straighten out, because of the comparative slowness with which modern school buildings can be erected, owing to the shortage and high costs of labor and materials.

New York with a school attendance of 1,113,449 last year, reported an increase of 13,000 pupils, school opened Monday. Of the $27,000,000 worth of buildings now under construction, sufficient seats were expected to be provided in the next 90 days to just take care of the 14,000.

A combination of municipal action and legislation enactment during the last term, resulted in raising the salaries of New York's teachers a maximum of 40 per cent. Elementary teachers' pay was raised from $3,000 and $1,500, to $1,500, $2,875 and $1,500, to $2,150 to $1,900, $2,750 and $1,500.

INCREASE FOR TEACHERS

An average increase of $100 a year in Chicago wiped out the shortage of teachers there. Boston reported 175 portable school buildings in use to help care for its 112,000 scholars. A special commission on teachers' salaries recently recommended increases of $50 to $500 a year. A serious shortage in teachers was still evident here.

Pittsburg raised its teachers' salaries a year. The housing situation was expected to be rendered more serious by the fact that the city's enrollment of 70,000 pupils this year was later to be increased to 85,000.

There were only 120 buildings for 125,000 pupils in Cleveland. Great congestion was reported and thousands were on "port time." An increase of 15 to 20 per cent in salaries did away with the teachers' shortage. They now receive a minimum of $1,200.

In Detroit, the housing shortage was reported to be well on the way to solution with addition of several buildings. There were "plenty of teachers" owing to salary increases of $320, $1,230 to $1,500, $1,700 for elementary and $1,200, $1,700 to $1,700, $2,600 for high school instructors.

Citizens voted a $8,000,000 bond issue and additional tax levy for 15 new school houses in Columbus, Ohio, where congestion was reported. Salaries were raised from 12 to 22 1-2 per cent.

RAILROADERS TO VISIT HARDING

Marion Workers to Hear Candidate On Issues

INTEREST CENTERS ON MAINE

G. O. P. Leaders Anxious About Control of Next Senate

MARION.—(By United Press).—Local railroad men will gather around the Harding front porch after work Monday to hear the Republican presidential nominee discuss issues of value concerning them.

He probably will defend the Esch-Cummins act which has been so bitterly criticized by labor leaders. Harding's view is that the act constitutes a bill of rights for labor and assures them instant and complete justice.

There is much interest here in the outcome of the state elections in Maine Monday as throwing light on the trend of the country. Republicans recently there have advised Senator Harding that a majority of close to 25,000 will be cast for the Republican ticket. Headquarters here, however, feel gratified if the vote is above 10,000 or 12,000, which they say is the normal Republican majority.

It developed Monday that one of the real reasons behind the serious consideration of a western speaking trip for Senator Harding is the fight for control of the United States senate. Harding's advisors coming here from various parts of the country, believe that every effort should be made to insure election of a Republican senate. Close fights are expected in several states and with a working majority of only one senator at present Republican party leaders do not want to take any chances.

In view of the great number of international questions certain to come before the next senate, it is essential to the success of a Republican administration, they say, that they have a majority in the senate. Republican leaders feel certain a Republican lower house will be returned, but they have less confidence about the senate.

BACK TO THE FARM, BOYS!
THAT there are unmistakable signs of a change in economic conditions in the United States cannot be denied; a movement that is expected to take thousands of boys back to the farms.
Banks all over the country have been tightening up on loans and are calling in loans that were made for speculative purposes. The public is not buying so recklessly as in the past and as a natural result the manufacturers are curtailing their output.

This has its result. Thousands of men have been thrown out of employment and many of them are experiencing difficulty in finding other sources of earning a livelihood. As a general rule, the farm hand who rushed off to the city is the least experienced in those trades and it is but natural that he should be the first laid off.

There is no more sensible course for him to pursue than to return to the farm, where his services are needed and where he is an expert. A job is always awaiting him there. Speed his return. He is welcome when he arrives, for the demands made on agriculture are growing every year. The day is not far distant when it will be necessary for intensive farming to take the place of the plan that has been in vogue in this country for so many years. The young man who prepares himself for it is the one who will succeed the most abundantly and who will realize the greatest financial return for his effort.

The war took many young men away from the farm for military service. Big wages in the mills and factories of the cities took more. Many of those who returned from the war likewise sought jobs at big pay rather than return to the farm, where results were just as certain, but mayhap slower. It is an encouraging sign of the times that many of these are coming to a realization of the fact that they owe it as a duty to themselves and to their fellowmen to again join the great throng engaged in the commendable task of planting and sowing and cultivating and harvesting, that the millions who have no opportunity of courting the generosity of the soil, may live.

AFTER THAT VOTE
NOW the leading editorials in all the partisan papers of either side of this presidential dispute are flattering the women. From time immemorial it has been the habit of male space writers to moan and lament over the dress of womankind. But lo, comes the change.

The extreme costume of today has nothing whatsoever on Eve who started this world. In fact, the bathing suit that can be squeezed into a receptacle built for only a handkerchief, still leaves modesty in favor of the twentieth century girl over Madam Eve. And the paint? You must admit it helps; freshening up the middle-aged to a competitive basis with the debutante.

We could never see why womankind should be damned because she seeks to be beautiful. Thousands of men would be far better in health and get that "feel" which femininity shows in her very walk when well groomed. If these men would bathe oftener, change their apparel daily and spruce up. Woman now possesses the vote, and the partisan press thus seeks to flatter her; but in the final analysis, husbands stick closer when Willy grooms the more.

MISS LIMA: "One of the joys of the vegetable season lies in the fact that one can look a potato in the eye without flinching at the price."

SHORT ONES.
IF the Republicans elect Harding, who will be our next president?
IF the charter form of government wins, what will we do with Charlie Evans?
IF Cincinnati wins the pennant, will Henry Ford run an excursion down to the games?
IF our boulevard lights really work, what effect will it have on the speak easies?

POLISH RUSSIAN SITUATION
BOTH the Poles and the Russians appear to be trying to get their second wind for a renewal of battle and in the face of the urgency of one to keep and the other to regain a military advantage, peace negotiations appear to have gone by the board.
If Poland and Russia want peace, just plain peace, they should not find it hard to get. There is only one way to quit fighting and that is to quit. The bolshevik terms, announced at Minsk, show that the Russians want a little more than peace. They hope, in fact, to make Poland a soviet satellite. And the Poles feel that they do not have to accept such conditions now, so the war goes on, but with greatly reduced vigor. Apparently the Poles are about as much fought out as the bolshevik.

Their exhaustion in the Polish campaign does not prevent the bolsheviks from trying to crush Wrangel in South Russia. But Wrangel has not broken and has only a relatively small force, hence it is evident that the soviet effort in that direction is not a great one. The soviet also has on its hands a revolt in Transcaucasia, where the Tartar inhabitants have found the institution of communist government followed by a heavy increase in the cost of living.

Hope of eventual peace between Poland and Russia is balanced by fear of a new outbreak in the Balkans, with possible outside complications. Serbs and Albanians are fighting over the southernmost province of Yugoslavia, with Bulgarians getting in their oars on either side and Italy said to be patting the Albanians on the back. As if this were not enough to widen the breach between the Serbs and Italy, poet D'Annunzio has again prodded the sore spot of Fiume by proclaiming an Italian regency over that territory and the Adriatic Islands.

This may be only poetic license, but it serves to call the attention of everyone to the fact that the Fiume dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia has not been settled in any way.

CLEAN THE ALLEYS.
E LKS here from other cities thought well of Lima until the parade, in forming, caused several trips thru some of our alleys. Then our visitors began complaining of the filth. Our streets have been kept in pretty fair condition by the service department, but little or no attention is paid to alleys. It might be well to put the street cleaning department on special duty for a few days and get a start for winter.

At the present moment, for the first time in many years, we have that much-desired wealthy feeling. It is largely psychological. The nearest chance association with wealthy persons is apt to give one that feeling. In our case we are not directly in touch with great wealth, but we feel sort of not consanguinity or propinquity to it, but a certain nearness which is difficult to describe—a sort of hazy connection exists between us and immense riches. The fact of the matter is that we are now being treated for a slight indisposition by the Standard Oil Company. We are taking a certain brand of tonic prescribed and recommended and produced by that great concern. It costs us only $1, but the price doesn't even insinuate in the remotest way the splendid feeling of financial well-being which it has instilled into our jaded consciousness.

WHAT THE STARS PREDICT TODAY
This day is especially fortunate.
It is a lucky rule under which to launch new enterprises and to make changes in business policies.
Honors for an army officer are indicated.
Riots in all parts of the country will occur under this rule.
A crisis in shipping is forecast and the launching of a novel method of transportation will result.
Persons whose birthday this is will have a prosperous year.
Children born today will have long, happy lives.

HEALTH HINTS
By William Brady, M. D.
THE BABY WHO EATS THE EARTH

A craving for unnatural food is commonly observed in cases of that type of anemia called chlorosis ("green sickness"). It is likewise a frequent complaint of expectant mothers. When the craving leads to the eating of abnormal things, such as soil or earth, it may give rise to suspicion of the individual's sanity or mental health, but in truth earth eating does not warrant such suspicion. A great many babies of whose mental normality there can be no question do just love to eat the earth—probably inheriting a very hearty appetite from one or another side of the family tree. All of these unusual cravings are known by the name of pica.

Clay eaters in some portions of America and other countries have been played up so much in the Sunday papers that everybody has heard of them. Very often these people have a marked anemia, due to hookworm infestation. The larvae of the hookworms are taken into the system along with the clay or soil and in the course of time develop into adult hookworms in the small intestine, where they remain and produce the anemia; sometimes the anemia increases the abnormal craving for earth.

Infants with this craving for earth will make assaults on mother's flower pots or father's hotbeds or even Uncle John's gravel walks, anything to get a good hunk of "dirt" to eat.

Perhaps there is a physical basis for the queer appetite in many such cases. An infant 30 months old, raised on condensed milk, is a constant threat to his father's little parcel of real estate. Condensed milk cheats a baby badly all around; it cheats him of vitamins, for one thing, and a baby can't develop normally if his food does not contain these accessory factors; it cheats him of fat, for another thing, since condensed milk contains practically no fat as diluted for feeding; it cheats him of mineral matter, too. Herein, perhaps, lies the explanation for the pica. Denied his just ration of mineral matter the child goes to the earth direct. Can you blame him? As diluted for feeding, condensed milk gives the baby only about one-tenth as much mineral matter as human milk gives.

The remedy to be applied when the baby tries to eat the earth is a more liberal diet, not necessarily a more nutritious ration, but a generous allowance of foods which contain the necessary mineral constituents. Fresh milk from cows contains more mineral matter than human milk. Fresh fruit juices, or after the fifth month of age, fruit pulp well stewed, should be added to the child's diet. Every child, not breast-fed, should begin to take some fresh meat broths at the sixth month of age, and a teaspoonful or two daily of any well cooked vegetable, strained thru a sieve, at about the same time. This applies to Mr. Watkins seemed to like Mary at once. She really was a wonder. She started right in as if she had been a waitress all her life. About an hour after the place opened—e happened to be near each other for a moment, and she jingled some change and said:

"My first tips, Zena. I felt like a beggar when I took the first one—now I'm looking for 'em."

I had been so embarrassed by my tips that I knew something of what she felt. But while she had become used to taking them in an hour, I felt sure I never would overcome the feeling that I was making myself an object of charity, or be able to accept them without flushing. Yet I realized that I was foolish. I needed the tips, it was customary for waitresses to give them. Should I object, it would not only be foolish, but probably make me an object of ridicule.

So I pocketed my pride and my tips.

"Gee, but I'm tired!" Mary said as we ate our luncheon, a better one than we had been able to afford, and to which we both did justice.

"Pretty nifty grub!" Mary added after a moment.

"Isn't it good?" I returned.

"I'm going to make good here, Zena. I'm going to be one of them head waitresses, you see if I ain't."

"I haven't a doubt but you will, Mary. But I never shall—I couldn't!"

From the first day that I had worked in the restaurant, I had noticed a young man who seemed to take all his meals there. He had attracted me by the embarrassed way he tipped me. He was tall and very thin. He ate delicately, also very sparingly. He looked like a student. I thought yet seemed a bit old, about 30. His clothes were shiny, but he was always very neat and clean. His linen, spotless, his shoes shined.

"That pale-faced guy is falling in love with you, Zena," Mary said a week after she commenced to work in the restaurant. "He wouldn't take the place the head waiter had to go, but motioned that he wanted to sit at your table."

"Don't be imagining things, Mary."

"As he never will have the chance, particularly to the baby that has been cheated on some inadequate substitute for fresh milk because parents have the mistaken belief that if a food happens to 'agree' it is the proper food."

He probably hadn't a single thought of me. Perhaps he liked the location of the table.

"What you blushin' for if it's that? He looks all right—poor tho. You can't marry a poor man, Zena. Not as poor as him. He couldn't take care of your mother I know."

Mary! what's the use of talking about it? Some way I am sort of sorry for him. I wish he wouldn't tip. He looks as if he didn't eat enough."

"Better take his tips if you don't want to hurt his feelin's. I tried that gag with an old man the other night. Told him we didn't expect tips. He knew I was lyin' and that I had seen he didn't order hardly nothin' at all. He was the same kind as your young man, and he just give me one look and said: 'I do as others do. You have served me very nicely.' Then he left 5 cents by his plate—he had only eat 15 cents worth."

Mary had often astonished me by little things that showed her kindness. She probably would never have mentioned this experience had I not said I wished the young man would not tip me.

After this talk with Mary I watched him when he came in. It was as she had said. He refused other tables, often waiting until someone left so he could sit where I would wait upon him. He always spoke pleasantly before he ordered, and after he had finished. He had a quiet, cultivated voice, and I noticed when he smiled that he had beautiful teeth, white and even.

One day he laid a beautiful rose beside his plate when he got up from the table. He blushed as he did so. That night he gave me no tip. I knew, as well as if he had told me, that he had bought the rose to give me, and also that he probably couldn't afford to do both. I thanked him, but waited to pick it up until he had gone.

"What did I tell you?" Mary asked. "She had observed the incident. 'I guess I know when a fellow is in love!'"

YOUR NAME
BY PHILIP FRANCIS NOWLAN
VARIATIONS — O'Mooney, O'Moynagh, Money, O'Mooney.

nagh, Money. RACIAL ORIGIN—Irish. SOURCE—A given name. The family names in the Mooney group, like virtually all Irish surnames, are derived from a given name, and originally bore either the prefix "O" or "Mac," signifying in the Irish tongue "descendant of," and came into being first as tribal or clan names, being adopted by all the followers of the chieftain's banners as well as by his own family.

Strangely enough, one of the variations of this family name of Mooney, or "O'Moynagh," which is the ancient Irish form, comes very close in its English meaning to the meaning of the given name from which the family name is developed. This variation is Money. The given name in the ancient Irish was "Maoinach," from the Irish word "maoine," meaning "wealth."

The domination of English custom and language, as well as English law in some instances compelled at various periods the anglicizing of Irish family names, and the existence of such widely varying forms as Mooney, Moynagh and Money is traceable to the fact that the English and Irish alphabets do not parallel each other completely, and the pronunciation of the Irish diphthongs is quite different from English.

Family names of the Mooney group are common both in Ulster and in King's county, having been derived from different chieftains of the same name.

PARTY FROCK FOR THE SCHOOL MISS

BY ELOISE

It is the fashion of the school children to wear a party frock with fresh young girls and fond mothers who are shopping industriously for school frocks, coats, hats, boot, blouses and all of the other things which must be packed away in the trunk of the new school bag. One of the most important things and one of the best to be packed away is always the party frock. What a thrill it gives the young girl, that new frock for the first big dance of the year. Perhaps it will be the football dance or maybe the formal of "his" fraternity.

Usually one frock must do until Thanksgiving or Christmas holidays and so great care must be taken in choosing it. Here is a very pretty and dainty party frock which will delight any schoolgirl. The gown needs little description, for it is so delightfully simple. The material in this case is a lovely shade of blue-gray tulle. Tulle, by the way, is always a safe choice for the young girl. It is always pretty and youthful and always in style.

Silver lace edges the foundation which just shows beneath the seashell overskirt. Narrow fluting of the tulle trims the quaint little bodice with its round neck and diminutive sleeves and many rows of it trim the skirt at its hips. A little wreath of satin flowers at the waist is the finishing touch.

The Museum of Art is to be conducted during the winter months with Mrs. S. E. Musmann in charge will open during the early part of October.

Why Castoria?

YEARS ago Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups were the remedies in common use for Infants and Children; Castor Oil so nauseating as to be almost impossible and the others all containing Opium in one form or another, but so disguised as to make them pleasant to the taste, yet really to stupefy the child and give the appearance of relief from pain.

It required years of research to find a purely vegetable combination that would take the place of these disagreeable, unpleasant and vicious remedies that from habit had become almost universal. This was the inception of, and the reason for, the introduction of Fletcher's Castoria, and for over 30 years it has proven its worth, received the praise of Physicians everywhere and become a household word among mothers.

A remedy ESPECIALLY prepared for Infants and Children and no mother would think of giving to her baby a remedy that she would use for herself, without consulting a physician.

THE ROOM WITH THE TASSELS

By Carolyn Wells

When Mary Pennington married a man named Wise, it was not at all an unusual impulse that prompted her to name her first born son after her own family name, and so Pennington Wise came into being.

Then, of course, it followed, as the night the day, that his school chums should call him Penny Wise, which name stuck to him thru life. Whether this significant name was the cause of his becoming a detective is not definitely known, but a detective he did grow up to be, and a good one, too. Eccentric, of course, what worthwhile detective is not? But clear cut of brain, mild and intelligent. And always on the lookout for an interesting case, for he would engage in no others.

Wherefore, his persistence in desiring to investigate the strange mysteries of Black Aspens won the day against Milly's endeavors to prevent his coming. She had done all she could, and most of the house party had aided her efforts, but Professor Hardwick had become imbued with the idea that there was human agency at work, and that his belief in spiritual visitation, honest tho it had been, was doomed to a speedy death, unless further proof could be shown.

Norma, too, was rather inclined to welcome a specialist in the solving of mysterious problems, and in conference with the Professor agreed to do all she could to help the Wise man in his work.

Norma was still of the opinion that the two tragic deaths were the work of evil spirits, but if it were not so, she wanted to know it.

But the principal reason why Pennington Wise came to Black Aspens was his own determination to do so. He had never heard of such an unusual and weird mystery, and it whetted his curiosity by its strange and almost unbelievable details.

The opposing party gave in gracefully, when they found his advent was inevitable. All but Milly, that is. She spent her time alternately crying her heart out in Wynne's arms, and bracing herself up for a calm and indifferent attitude before the new investigator.

"Keep a stiff upper lip," Brave advised her. "Remember, not to give out any information, Milly. Let him find out all he can, but don't help him."

"All right, Rudolph; and, anyway, I know Wynne is innocent."

"Of course," he said. "That goes without saying. But if he is suspected, say, if Stebbins or Thorpe or anybody else puts Wise up to suspicion, it may mean a bad quarter of an hour for all of us. So, just be quiet, dignified, pleasant-mannered and all that, but don't say anything definite. For it might be misconstrued and misunderstood, and make trouble. At least, that's the course I'm going to pursue, and I think it's the best plan."

"Now, I know it," Milly agreed. "I've told you just about what I think. I'll only make mistakes, so, too, told me to keep quiet. Eye awfully open, because that man coming. She's not saying so, but I know her. And Rudolph, she's afraid of something. I don't know that, exactly, but she's fearfully afraid of developments."

"We all are, Milly. If the detective pins it on any human being, that means trouble, and if he dares it's worse. After all, I think I'll be most afraid of them than you."

"I can't be any more afraid of them than I am," Milly shuddered. "Oh, Rudolph, how I wish we had never come on here!"

"We all wish that, Milly, but as we are in it now, we must see it through."

"I suppose Wise arrived the next day. He came into the hall in an arm with banners. A tall, well-proportioned man, about thirty years of age, with chestnut hair, brown eyes, a clear blue face, a pleasant, friendly smile, and a manner that proclaimed general intelligence and efficiency to the last degree."

"Now I am," he announced, looking down several pieces of hard luggage and whipping off his coat. "I'll be right in." "You are the host?"

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

BY PHYLIS PHILLIPS
A ROSE.

August 30.—No news from Jack, not since the last scrappy letter, and there was a mail in today. I think he is forgetting all about me in my absence.

Jeffrey is due to arrive tomorrow; maybe there will be some love letters for me on his boat.

Aunt Cecilia is hardly seable to-day at all, she's so fussed and excited. Glowing like an early June rose, and her eyes—goodness, they are like panned velvet from the warehouse of the gods!

She has been trying to make up her mind all morning as to which of her eight new costumes to wear to meet Jeffrey in. And at last we have both decided on a lovely soft yellow, corded silk, which is most becoming. My! but she is excited. She says there's no telling what may happen within the next few weeks, and I feel that way myself. I just know that auntie feels the way I do about long engagements, and she, sensible creature, will very likely up and marry Jeffrey, just as soon as the law will allow. I admire her for that.

We are to go on to Paris the beginning of next week—that will be grand, and especially having Jeffrey with us. A man does live things up so.

Dorcy writes me of her great happiness; so does Jeanie; so does old Laura; and now here's Arline and—soon—Auntie. Any wonder I want to up and place myself in a position to write them the same? Why, I've certainly got the marriage fever, and badly. I wouldn't be an old maid—not for the biggest and brightest career that the whole Hall of Fame had to offer me as an inducement to keep single, and my individuality inviolate! Nor me. What a foolish little girl I have been, worrying about problems that never crop up in my path at all. Maybe that's why the reaction has set in so heavily. Maybe that's why I'm so anxious to go home and see my boy, and love him, and get married so that we can be

Mother tells me that I am commencing to be a sensible girl in some ways. That makes me sort of mad, and yet I know just why I am so short tempered and fretful—and why she noticed my red eyes the other afternoon, after I had been having a jolly good cry. She knows that I am longing for my Jack.

I wish I could order that magic carpet that I used to read about in "The Arabian Nights," and be suddenly whizzed thru the air on it over to America and dropped at the feet of the man I love.

Best I could do in these modern times would be to charter an airplane.

Jimmy, a dear little boy of the streets I met a week ago, and have since seen every day, told me that he would love to come to America and live with me; and between you and me, little book, I'm going to manage that for him. I'd feel badly to leave him here to his fate, especially after knowing the full sweetness of his nature. No, I intend to get him away from his press.

Best I could do in these modern times would be to charter an airplane.

Jimmy, a dear little boy of the streets I met a week ago, and have since seen every day, told me that he would love to come to America and live with me; and between you and me, little book, I'm going to manage that for him. I'd feel badly to leave him here to his fate, especially after knowing the full sweetness of his nature. No, I intend to get him away from his press.

DETECTIVE SAVES GIRL CROOK

That's in Movie, But it is Full of Interest

"HELD IN TRUST" PRESENTED

May Allison is Praised For Work in Picture

(By ESTHER WAGNER)
THE story of a girl crook returning to the straight and narrow path through the influence of a detective furnishes the plot for one of the most finished and entertaining pictures shown on the Regent screen for some time. One of the Famous Authors, Leroy Scott is responsible for the book, "Partners of the Night," and its dramatization by Goldwyn is splendid.

There's much to do about a band of crooked police officers, the chief of whom while pretending to serve the public, has corrupted the whole force with the exception, however, of Detective Clifford. One of the tools of the king is Miss Moran who isn't exactly bad at heart but merely got a wrong start. Clifford starts out to save the city from further crime expose the police commissioner and save the community from any further trouble. How he accomplishes all this entirely fills up the five reels with rapid action.

The one woman in the cast, Miss Purnell, who has been in pictures long, only handles the role of Miss Moran. Miss Nesbit is of the starchy, unbending type who never smiles and who would seem more than a little bit like a machine.

However for work is splendid. Emmett Corrigan is the crook chief and William Davidson is Robert Clifford the hero, both deserving credit.

There are several interesting scenes and in all of a fast pace about the whole production and the picture goes off without a flaw.

MAY ALLISON's latest picture, "Held in Trust," is a very good picture, indeed. That is, if you have a craving for pictures of a melodramatic nature. The little shougirl who is an innocent woman's double, after the latest's death at the advice of the villains in the case, steps into the shoes of the detected. She little thinks she is doing the handsome leading man a wrong. But the villains have persuaded her that by becoming someone else she is continuing on humanity a great life-long.

The reason for all this is, of course, a fortune. The money, of the deceased who is to be a nephew or cousin or something and then, who made the trust fund on grand old daddy's death, he shall not have it. Which counts for the double.

I have never liked Miss Allison so well as in this, her latest. She has splendid support and the best of it is not Teddy Whittier, the little fellow.

"Held in Trust" is showing at the Regent.
